...forward for the Shrine of Our Lady of Walsingham

The Shrine of Our Lady of Walsingham was a ruined and desolate place when William Shakespeare wrote his will, so no bequest came from him, nor from any of the other historic 'Wills' on our front page – with one exception.

Sir William Milner was a wealthy man who supported the Shrine with many donations during his lifetime (1893 – 1960) and remembered its work and witness with a generous gift on his death; a gift that in a very real way helped – and still helps – the Shrine to meet the ever-growing numbers of pilgrims and their needs. In 2008 his great gift to the revival of the place of prayer and devotion was marked by the naming of the new accommodation wing and Welcome Centre in his honour.

The early supporters of Fr Hope Patten's vision to restore the Shrine believed they were sharing in something momentous, even essential for the religious life of this country. Not all were wealthy like Sir William, but they gave what they had out of love for Our Lady of Walsingham and so participated in the renewal of pilgrimage and the rediscovery of this place of holiness, healing and spiritual renewal.

Those early pilgrims became benefactors because they realised that the restoration of pilgrimage needed buildings and endowments to ensure a future beyond their own day. They wanted to share their blessings and through their generosity, thousands of folk find their way to 'England's Nazareth' and are invited to enter the mystery of God's love and mercy.

You have a chance to assist this great work with your prayers and by remembering the Shrine and its ministry in your will.

The peace and tranquillity of the Shrine Garden.

Over the past ten years there has been a programme of major building work: a new pilgrim refectory, the Milner Wing with 27 en suite bedrooms, the creation of the Welcome Centre (essential as we seek to turn tourists into pilgrims) and the refurbishment of St Anne's House. And there is the constant redecoration and updating of our existing facilities. In addition we have expanded our work among young people through the Schools' Department and Youth Pilgrimages.

We keep the cost to pilgrims low, so we need legacies and benefactions to develop the work and improve our facilities so we can respond to the ever increasing number of people taking the road to Walsingham.
